JACK IS BACK!

Alright, it's time I come clean. I know many of you avid Bullsheet readers and fans have been wondering about my absence over the past two weeks. Understandably so, the Sheet has simply not been the same during my temporary leave. I also figure many of you have heard the rumors being spun by the well-intentioned gossiping spinstresses we share this beautiful campus with. It's alright. I'm here to wash away any doubt or misconceptions about my time away from The Bullsheet.

The honest answer is, the rumors, the gossip, it's all true. I won't waste time denying the facts to save my own reputation.

Yes, I was at Space Camp. And it was fucking dope.

MY FAVORITE MEMORIES FROM SPACE CAMP 2020

1.) The Fits

That's right. They straight up let us keep these. Tell me you've seen a harder flex. You can't. Those patches? Good luck finding them online. These jumpsuits are one of a kind, baby.

2.) This Thing

I still don't really understand why they made us do this. Most of the camp consisted of long, sleepless nights strapped into this gyroscope of suffering, in a cold dark room, away from the other campers. It was fun though! Amusement park vibes.

3.) Zero Gravity Simulations?

I'll be honest, I'm a little upset. I just stumbled upon this photo online. My space camp did not have zero gravity simulations. How come these kids got to float around and shit? Not fair. How are they even floating there like that? Science really is amazing.

IT'S BLUEGRASS, BABY!

A vision that came to me as my soul left my body after sleeping for 3 hours and then shotgunning a Monster.

Why I Should (or Should Not) Be Invited To Collab With The Denison Bluegrass Ensemble

Pros:

- I can play the spoons (poorly)
- I will maybe get an art credit
- Bluegrass is one of the top three types of grass, right after Turkeyfoot and Black Mondo

Cons:

- I am Illiterate
- I once broke a violin
- I know neither tone nor rhythm and I fear no man.

My application stands. Thank you, you know how to contact me. Goodnight.

ROHEEZY'S PLEA-ZY

So I know #SpookySZN has passed, and now we find ourselves in what may be the most confusing time of the year; November. Confusing for a myriad of reasons. Today we will talk about the most superficial of these reasons because, well, the others are just too serious and complex to get into on the back of this thoroughly entertaining sheet.

This is, of course, the ever-raging debate of what holiday belongs to November. While many use November to get a headstart on christmas decorations and preparation, These people all ignore the significance Thanksgiving has.

Thanksgiving is an occasion which people do not pay enough attention to. Who doesn't love good food and reuniting with old annoying cousins who you only see very late November or december? also, I could really do without all the excessive chriatmas decorations. that's the main reason here. i just cant reconcile seeing a giant inflatable frosty the snowman and santa and his sleigh proudly displayed in your front lawn.

Honestly, that is just doing too much. decorations should be up, maximum a month prior to the occasion. we dont start preparing forhalloween until ctober 1st. whats so special abotu Christmas???

Also, It really annoys me that all you christmas zealot sill reap the benefis of Thanksgiving. Look, I get it, you like letting eveyrone know youre festive af in the middle of november, but i better not see one turkey on your Facebook, Twitter, Linkedin, Venmo, or whatver!

TURKEY

My school has a satirical newsletter and it's crazy for me to read it and see how funny the girls and the guys are. I feel like their clout is from rep alone but you read the actual paper and it's just like... all staff
