TOP 5 ARTICLES I WROTE OVER THE SUMMER

Carter Seipel,
Hasn't missed a week!

Last year I gained the reputation as the Bullsheet writer who never missed a week of writing, so in order to avoid losing that title due to the inevitable sophomore slump I continued writing every week in the summer. It was the perfect plan to stay ahead of the curve, unfortunately my writings were all so specific to the time I wrote them, they are all completely unusable now. Here's the best five that may never see the light of day:

5. 5 Coolest Dads This Father's Day

Spoiler: All five happen to be biblical fathers

4. 4 4th of July Traditions You Won't Want To Break or Else You'll Feel the Wrath of Uncle Sam

Half the list was about blowing things up. USA! USA!

3. I think I just heard an iced cream truck!

Yum

More articles that will never see the light of day on the back! →

2. 2 Movies, 1 Ticket. Barbie or Openhimer: A guide

Hint: Michael Cera is in which film?

1. 1 Week Before the Semester? 10 Things You'll Forget to Bring to Campus!

You forgot at least three things but it's too late now. Have fun finding out what you forgot!

WEIRD THINGS ABOUT OHIO, AS SOMEONE FROM ANN ARBOR (MI)

Abby Webster '27,
Student Submission

I am from Ann Arbor which is home to the University of Michigan. And after living in Ohio for around 3 weeks now I have concluded that y'all are weird as heck. For example at parties y'all know what a trash can is. I expected the campus to look like how it does in Ann Arbor. Which is the front yards of dorms and sororities to be covered in red solo cups and other garbage with a massive empty dumpster. And there's no shattered glass all over the sidewalks. Speaking of sidewalks, Granville is not impossible to walk around in. In my 3 weeks of living in Ohio I have not been cat called, harassed by a Christian white man, almost run over by a car, or fallen into a pothole. And there's no construction on the roads. People can actually go places in a decent amount of time. Speaking of time, the parties here actually stop at a decent hour of the night. No longer am I woken up at 3am by dubstep vibrating the entire neighborhood. I can sleep peacefully to then be woken up at 2am by people screaming in Crawford hall. The downside to going from a neighborhood to living in a dorm is that all the noises are very close to you and it is hard to escape them. However I am glad I was able to escape all the dangers of drunk college kids walking around a neighborhood full of children. Actually I have not seen a single child on campus. When I was in elementary school I saw college students everyday and thought that was normal. I also thought falling off my bike 50 times avoiding broken glass on the sidewalk while going to elementary school was normal. Also nobody bikes around here which I like because in Ann Arbor while we have bike lanes drivers don't know how to drive around them. So they have to use the sidewalk. In conclusion, Ohio may have it's quirks but its good at not being the worst.
