

GOTCHA!

It’s anything but a “who done it.” The effects of minimal sleep and hundreds of cigarettes a day are finally catching up to these Bullsheet Staff members. See how they’ve dealt with the physical manifestations of that pesky biological process:

Caroline Lopez,
Junior Editor

aging.

Botox is all the rage, but what happens when college-age adults use it “preventatively?” The answer: Nothing good. Take it from TikTok’s resident moron, Victoria Paris. The aspiring actress, model, lesbian, designer, chef, shopper, Pinterest “it girl,” Tumblr “it girl,” and probably singer has been receiving botox injections in the name of preventative medicine for several years now. Her face is now unrecognizable, moving only fractions of a millimeter at a time, while the rest of her body can still bend over backwards to achieve what many call impossible: a solo cacophony of vocal fry! In the name of research, The Bullsheet staff put this so-called “preventative medicine” to the test. The study lasted 8 weeks, and began with a pack of cigarettes per member. To ensure the best results, we chose Marlboros. A pack a day, for days. Then, several rounds of preventive botox over the course of seven weeks. The results?

7

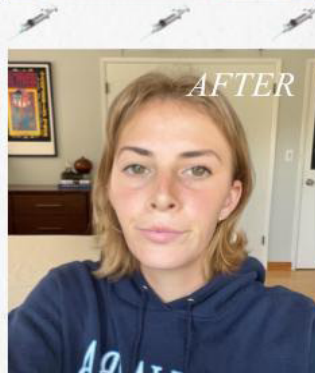

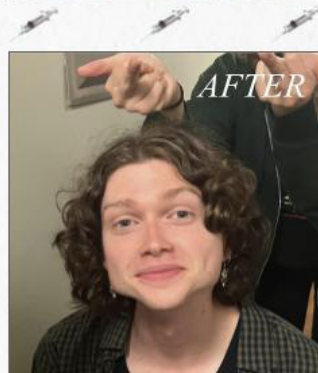

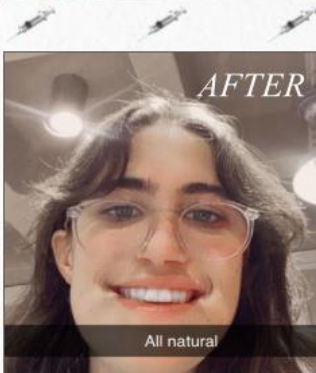

Shocking.

Claire Anderson

Mick Smith

Caroline Lopez

After just eight weeks of intensive, round-the-clock doses of preventative botox, Claire, Mick, and Caroline experienced what is known as the “Cher Effect.” Pipe cleaner-thin nasal passages, lithified plastic skin, and excruciatingly chiseled cheekbones: they pay off when finding a life partner, but at what cost? Beauty sure as hell won’t pay the bills!

TEMP CHECK, AGAIN

Claire Anderson,
Managing Editor

CLAIRE'S WEATHER REPORT:
IT'S RAINING!

BULLSHEET MARKETPLACE

Claire Anderson,
Managing Editor,
Caroline Lopez,
Junior Editor

BULLSHEET GREYWATER

“Healthy!” - rats

“Healing!” - Gwyneth Paltrow

“Hot to the touch!” - recently deceased microorganisms

Take it from Claire Anderson! It's good for you!

“I love this stuff! Since drinking it I've noticed changes in my personality and numbness in my feet and legs. Every major organ in my body feels different! I really like the metallic taste (it's great paired with a bagel and cream cheese in the morning). Yes, the drink comes with headaches and vomiting, but what fun drink doesn't!?”

Staff “Allergic to bees?” Box

Claire “Very” Anderson, Managing Editor
Emmy “Not really” Ayad, Junior Editor
Caroline “Needs epipen” Lopez, Junior Editor
Selah “Her? Never.” Griffin, Junior Editor

Mick “Face swells” Smith, Head Writer
Lauren “Kill bee before stung” Ehlers, Senior Writer
Ella “Not really?” Buzas, Junior Writer
Griffin “Yes, immediate death” Conley, Junior Writer
Caroline “Stings bee back” Concannon, Junior Writer
Micah “compliments bee” Stromsoe DeLorenzo, Junior Writer

Brin “Punches bee” Glass, Junior Writer
Carter “Of course not” Seipel, Sophomore Writer

