REVIEWING THE 2023 NATIONAL DOG SHOW: SCREW THAT DAMN DOG

Caroline Lopez,
Junior Editor

Congratulations, Stache the Sealyham terrier, you suck. You robbed every cable television viewer of a wonderful experience six days ago. Pumpkin, America's beloved Dalmation, was SNUBBED of a deserving win.

THIS JUST IN: NEW THANKSGIVING STATS ARE SHOCKING!!!! *INTENSE

Brin Glass,
Loves her family

The Reporters at the Bullsheet have received stats from all willing Super 8s, Holiday Inns, and Best Westerns from Thanksgiving week.

We were given the rate of rooms booked and at what time. We were “shocked” to see an influx of rooms booked on the Wednesday before the holiday; however, what drew our attention most was a ginormous spike in booked rooms at 11:30 PM, Thursday night, after most families had finished their dinner festivities and begun guzzling liquor.

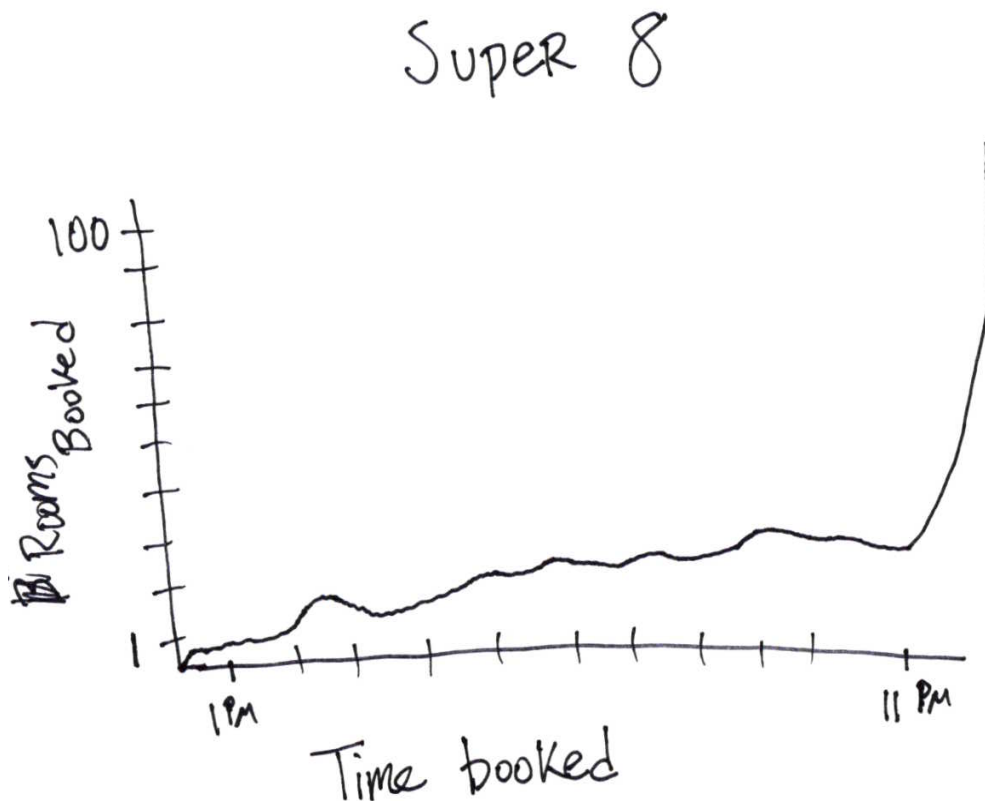

At 11:30 PM, there was a 70% increase in single rooms booked for the remaining three nights of break. These stats were especially noticeable at the Super 8s, with a 150% increase, probably due to their free continental breakfast (lessgooooo!).

To better understand the situation, Super 8 connected us with one consumer who booked a single-bed room at 11:35 PM on Thursday outside Columbus, OH.

Robert Davinci, 45, tells us he bought this room because “my Great Aunt is a dumb  who won’t leave me alone. She said no more drink or food and I just got so mad I had to fu-” Before Davinci finished his thoughts, he received a Cyber Monday notification so tempting that he immediately fled the interview.

From the Bullsheet’s one interview, we have decided that the influx can only be the cause of one thing: Family.

Maybe next year just get the damn hotel room.
