THINGS I'M TOTALLY CHILL ABOUT.

Carter Seipel,
A Chill Bill

It may be true that my friends would describe me as, “nervous,” “off putting,” and “strange.” At least that’s how answered that prompt on my dating app profile. Regardless of what my friends say, I’d like to think I could be a ‘chiller’ too! I’m so chill! See? Here’s a list of things I’m totally not bothered by:

- The one hour notice I got that my bus trip home from fall break was cancelled
- Adobe InDesign is not snapping things into place while I edit this sheet
- The slightly messed up formatting of this sheet (Sorry Elliot)
- Decding dinner plans
- Cramming in over a hundred pages of reading in one night (it’s so not happening)
- Keeping the comedic momentum up in this list
- The sea of paperwork CSEA LAW is drowning in
- That paper I already forgot about
- Figuring out what class that paper was for
- That this list has no good call backs yet
- Zero matches on that dating profile I mentioned earlier
- The ethics of putting an ad in the Bullsheet

ADVERT ALERT! AVERT YOUR EYES!

Carter Seipel,
Shameful Sellout

Mad that the Bullsheet, Burpees, and/or Sketch’rs didn’t accept your to-tally hilarious application? Well, here’s your chance to prove them wrong! Sign up for The Bandersnatch’s open mic for a chance to show off your comedic talents to all of campus! Well, porbably just some of campus.

Does the thought of performing to your peers make you sick to your stomach? Same! Luckily, you’re welcome to just sit down and watch your classmates do their best Seinfeld impressions.

Not to spoil the show, but a certain somebody in that staff box below will be there ~~bombing~~ performing!

Truly an event that will leave you saying, “well, that was something.” And who would want to miss a night like that? Not you! So, what are you waiting for? It’s TONIGHT!
