

Edited last night by:

Caroline (+Lindsey)

Delivered this morning by:

Elliot

November 5th, 2024

GRANVILLE'S AUTUMNAL-EST PUBLICATION

Vol. XLV, No. 46

SEASONS OF LOVE IS BLIND, RANKED

Ella Buzas,
Not blind

As a reality TV show connoisseur, I find myself qualified in ranking the seasons of Netflix's hit show Love is Blind. There may be spoilers!

Season 7: Only in the middle of watching this one, but so far, it's one of my favorite seasons yet. They casted a lot of older people (they're not old, but mainly in their early 30s) which means the people are usually a bit more mature. That being said, it also means the immaturity runs DEEP when it's there. Drama is good, people are funny, but there are a couple couples (haha) who I think are really strong and a good fit for each other. 65% drama, 35% love. RANKING: 9.5/10

Season 2: HOOOOOO boy. Loved this one. Great ratio of love to drama. SPOILER: None of the couples are still together, and it makes a lot of sense. So many of the people in this one were so insufferable- just the type you would want to see in a reality TV show. Made me laugh, cringe, and gawp at my laptop screen at least 6 times an episode. Awful watch, amazing content. 95% drama, 5% love. RANKING: 9.2/10

Season 3: Another banger of a season. Had more love to it, but a couple of the characters were just so immature and childish. But, in my opinion, it adds flavor! It adds spice! One of the couples is so nightmarish it still makes me cringe. Both people are so awful. Some of the craziest wedding scenes of the show in this one. 75% drama, 25% love. RANKING: 8.9/10

Season 1: The show just getting off the ground with this one. Some of the most nightmarish people, combined with some of the most down-to-earth couples I've ever seen. The weddings looked very low budget, which is cool to look back on, given the extravagance of the later seasons. 70% love, 30% drama. Decent combo, but fell a little flat at times. RANKING: 6.8/10

Season 5: Some of my favorite couples, in the worst possible way. Some of the most unique drama (staged?), and some of my all-time hated characters. There are maybe 4 people on the entire cast that I could get behind. All this being said, the season really felt like it dragged on. Don't know if I could rewatch the whole thing, only bits and pieces. Felt a little too manipulated, too produced, and not very organic or natural at all. 90% drama, 10% love? 0% love. RANKING: 6.2/10

Season 6: Liked this one, but also very high in the drama department. My main gripe with this season was not really with the couples (which, I think, are hellish), but with the people themselves. I feel like the people were all very plastic and fake, sort of uppity and superficial. Very few of them struck me as genuine, which I think detracted from the show a lot. Sort of got the vibe that not a whole lot of them were really in it for the love. 99% drama, 1% love. RANKING: 5.3/10

Season 4: Fell a little flat to me. Characters were annoying, you had the classic stable couple (which I always appreciate, the parents of the group), and drama seemed redundant and unoriginal. Good, not great. A lot of characters just gave me the heebie-jeebies. Love does look different to every couple, but a lot of them just gave off really strange vibes together. 50% drama, 35% love?, 15% love. RANKING: 4.6/10

THE BULLSHEET'S GUIDE TO TALKING TO CHAIRS

Tatum Thomas,
Senior Writer

VOTE

vote.

Staff "Vote?" Box

Caroline "Yes" Lopez, Managing Editor
Selah "Yes" Griffin, Senior Editor
Emmy "Yes" Ayad, Senior Editor
Brin "Yes" Glass, Senior Editor
Carter "Yes" Seipel, Junior Editor

Caroline "Yes" Concannon, Head Writer
Ella "Yes" Buzas, Senior Writer
Griffin "Yes" Conley, Senior Writer
Micah "Yes" DeLorenzo, Senior Writer
Tatum "Yes" Thomas, Senior Writer
Leah "Yes" Jackson, Junior Writer
Christine "Yes" Trueh, Junior Writer
Lucy "Yes" Dale, Sophomore Writer
Eleanor "Yes" Mason, Sophomore Writer

