*Brin and Caroline's revised winners:

For Thanksgiving break, I was with my class as we looked for King Richard III in London and Leicester for a whole week. After a very eventful time across the pond, here are some lessons I've learned.

Always be tasteful. don't be distasteful

Richard III was the last Plantagenet king of England

Be prepared for everything to be closed by 5:00 pm

Chain-smoking 3 cigarettes before 9 am is only good if you're in England

Peacocks like bread

Always grab your suitcase before you step off a train

Be prepared to eat a full english breakfast EVERY DAY when staying in a hotel

English people love a good protest

English people also love wifi, so always look for a server

Turtlenecks are a frat party staple

Always look right before you cross the street, NOT left

Sambuca is fucking disgusting

Mind the gap

Northern Ireland is very much relevant.

You're on the ground floor when you enter a building- not the first.

Sometimes the toilets work, and sometimes they don't.

Leicester is NOT like Newark at ALL

Always stand to the right side of the escalator

See it, Say It, Sort It.

If you don't get ID'd in a pub, take it as an insult.. it means you look over 25

Don't ever book a connecting flight with a layover of two hours if you are flying with 20 other people.

Don't cut the line at customs.. the line is not for you.

Don't ever fly American Airlines

You can actually find Richard III,
